“The saffron color denotes renunciation or disinterestedness. Leaders must be indifferent to material gains and dedicate themselves to their work. The white in the centre is light, the path of truth to guide conduct. The green shows the relation to plant life, on which all life depends. The "Ashoka Chakra" in the centre of the white is the wheel of the law of dharma. Truth or satya, dharma or virtue ought to be the controlling principle of those who work. Again, the wheel denotes motion;

There is death in stagnation. There is life in movement.

The wheel represents the dynamism of a peaceful change.”
